How the program works:

- You must fall into one of the three categories identified in Section 4 on page 1.
- The program allows you to claim a refund for part of the excise tax paid on gasoline at the rate of $0.015 per litre or $0.0015 per kilometre for allowances paid to employees for the operating expenses related to vehicles used for business purposes. To qualify for a refund, the gasoline you buy must be for your use and not for resale.
- Diesel fuel, heating fuel, propane, gasoline purchased in a foreign country, and aviation fuel do not qualify for an excise tax refund. Also, gasoline you buy for personal use does not qualify for a refund unless you are an individual with a permanent mobility impairment.

When to claim a refund:

- If your claim is less than $200, you can submit it for each six-month period ending June 30 or December 31. File your claim no later than one month after the end of the six-month period. For example, if you are claiming a refund of $150 for the period from January 1 to June 30, submit your claim by July 31.
- If your claim is $200 or more, you can submit it any time during the year. Please file a maximum of one claim per month.
- If your refund is for gasoline that you use in different vehicles, you should combine these amounts into one claim.

Documents to keep:

- Do not submit receipts or other documents with your application. However, you must keep your supporting documents such as invoices, receipts, or vouchers and confirmation-of-use statements, since we may ask you for proof that you purchased the gasoline for which you are claiming a refund. Your documents must contain enough information to allow us to verify your gasoline tax refund claim.
- Each proof of purchase must include the supplier's name, the purchase date, the quantity, and the price of gasoline purchased. We do not accept estimates for missing records.
- You can claim a refund for allowances that you paid your employees for the operating expenses related to the use of their personal vehicle for business purposes. You must keep copies of expense account statements that show kilometres and proof of payment to the employees.
- If you send receipts or vouchers to other government departments or agencies, you must keep copies or other written proof to support the application you file with us.
- You must keep all records and account books in Canada for six years from the end of the year to which they relate. If you are an organization or association, you must keep your books and records at your place of business in Canada.

Note:

Subsection 68.16(1) of the Excise Tax Act specifies that a refund will not be paid unless you file this application within two (2) years after the gasoline was purchased.
